 Human activities are causing an increase in global temperature and related climate disruption. Climate change causes floods, droughts, heat waves and massive storms. The effects will intensify unless we reduce greenhouse gas emissions.
- Over the past 200 years, humans have greatly increased the level of green house gases in the atmosphere by burning fossil fuels like oil and coal. Water vapour, carbon dioxide, methane, nitrous oxide and ozone are the common green house gases. These gases trap heat in the atmosphere. Excess emission of green house gases leads to a rise in global temperatures. Other factors such as deforestation have added to the problem. Trees soak up carbon dioxide from the air. Fewer trees, especially in the tropics, means that less carbon dioxide is removed from the atmosphere.
- Humans have caused this problem, and humans only can fix it. We must act soon to greatly reduce greenhouse gas emissions. This means all of us - individuals, communities, business, and governments - must work together now.

1. Mention two natural calamities caused by climate change.
2. What can humans do to reduce global warming?
3. Name the common greenhouse gases.
